

Singers to Raise Funds For Tabernacle Choir

by Marlene Taylor
University Staff Writer

The King Sisters, a vocal quartet, will be guest stars on a benefit program sponsored by Brigham Young University to aid the Salt Lake Tabernacle Choir in their forthcoming European tour.

At the present time the girls, Luise, Alyce, Yvonne, and Marilyn, are touring with Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis show. The tour will end May 26 in Chicago. The girls will fly to Provo to appear in the Smith Fieldhouse benefit show at 8:30 Friday night.

The sisters have been on several radio and television shows and have enjoyed much popularity in Hollywood singing engagements.

The quartet dissolved when one of the sisters, Alyce, married. Recently death robbed Alyce of her husband, and the sisters, with a desire to help her, persuaded Alyce to help bring the group back into being.

The sisters first big success was the Horace Heidt band in San Francisco. After touring with Heidt for five years they switched to the orchestra of Alvin Roy. Luise is now married to band leader Roy. When the quartet was reorganized it was the four younger sisters. They are now on the comeback road.

Students Round Out Show
Aiding the King Sisters with the program will be several numbers from the Student Program Bureau including the Kia Ora, Hawaiian, and Tribe of Many Feathers clubs. The program will also feature the Brighamettes, Rockettes, Y-olins, T's Men Band, Sam Thompson and Colleen Lawrence.

Prices for the show are $2 chair seats, $1 general admission, and 50 cents students. Tickets are being sold from 8:30 to 3:30 each day in the Eyring Science Center, in the Eccles Ballroom. Knights, according to Bryan Herrington, San Mateo, Calif., chairman of ticket sales.

The first five amendment proposals concern a reorganization of the Legislative Council.

IOC Chooses Viking Head As President

Karl Snow, Provo, Monday night was elected president of Inter-Organizational Council, a legislative body composed of presidents of every club on campus.

Steve Berrett, Berkeley, Calif., was elected vice president, and Marjorie (Robin) Bown, Lynbrook, N. Y., secretary.

Snow, a junior, is majoring in history and political science and in education. He was a candidate for president in this spring's student-body elections and was recently elected Blue Key president for next year.

He was chairman of the IOC committee which last month drew up proposals for revising the social unit rush procedure. Last fall he directed the Orientation Week assembly and originated the home decoration contest conducted during Homecoming week.

Active in church as well as student-body positions, Snow is MIA superintendent for the Oak Hills First Ward, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He served an LDS mission in Texas and Louisiana, and was a branch president of Bryce Canyon LDS branch.

Physics Major Earns Valedictorian Honor

National Science Foundation Fellowship Winner to Study for Doctoral Degree

Senior class valedictorian was named this week, as B. Kent Harrison, physics major from Spanish Fork received the honor.

Harrison was named for the distinction on the basis of his academic performances throughout his four years at Brigham Young University. His grade point average for the senior year was 2.96.

Physics Major

Harrison, who is a former resident of Provo, was a grade 10 of Provo High School in 1951. In the fall of that year, he entered BYU. Since enrolling at BYU, the new valedictorian has been both a geology and a physics major. In his sophomore year, he decided to try the geology field, but switched to physics the following term and is now planning to remain in that field.

This summer, Harrison will work in Princeton, N. J.

In the fall he plans to enroll at Princeton University for graduate work in the field of physics. Harrison will be working under a National Science Foundation Fellowship and aiming for his Ph. D. degree, which he expects will require three to four years more schooling.

Following his studies at Princeton, Harrison plans to continue research work. His chief aim at present is to work in either the branch of physics known as quantum mechanics or that of theoretical physics. Quantum mechanics is a modern method of studying atomic particles, and is closely related to the field of atomic energy.

Active in Honorary Groups

While at BYU, the twenty year old senior became a member of Sigma Pi Sigma, national physics honorary fraternity of which he was treasurer. Harrison was also president of the Sigma Xi social unit and a member of Phi Eta Sigma. The latter is an honorary society for freshmen and sophomores who have a 2.5 or better grade point average. Hobbies include hiking, swimming and collecting rocks and minerals.

Harrison is married to the former Janice Macfield, formerly of Provo and a graduate of BYU in elementary education. Harrison's father is Dr. Bertrand Harrison, chairman of the BYU botany dept.

FAREWELL, MR. OVESON

Monday night elections were held at Inter-Organizational Council. Karl Snow was elected president to succeed Dick Oveson, who will be graduated next week. In its five years IOC has been a growing organization. Under the direction of Oveson this year, it has undergone several changes and accomplished many things. Many innovations have also been initiated by Oveson that will not be realized until next year.

Inter-Organizational Council is composed of the presidents of all musical, geographical, departmental, religious, service, and social units.

Its purpose is to correlate the activities between the groups, to define and develop the purpose of individual organizations, and to regulate and assist organization functions.

Under a revised organizational structure, IOC will coordinate all inter-organizational participation in university functions. In addition, IOC will be better equipped to assist organizations with their internal problems. In all cases the purpose of IOC will be assistance rather than regulation.

As Brigham Young University grows, the need for group participation becomes more acute. Inter-Organizational Council must meet this problem by developing needed organizations, initiating added functions in organizations that already exist, and promoting individual interest in organizations.

Inter-Organizational Council's regulatory functions are centered in the Central Rushing Committee and the Auditing Committee. Central Rushing Committee supervises rushing, advises IOC on needed changes in rushing procedure and clears rushing complaints. The Auditing Committee audits all organization books, assists all treasurers, administers rules concerning fees, dues, and assessments by all organizations and acts upon complaints concerning organization debts.

Other assistance will be given by a scheduling committee, which will coordinate the time and place of activities; a committee on new organizations, which will assist in the inauguration of new groups; and a management planning board, which will assist organization presidents with management problems.

This year IOC held hearings on the perennial problem of rushing, and completed what is hoped to be a permanent solution to that difficulty. That plan has been presented to the administration for approval.

Oveson also devised a plan for a student-body court system which will be presented to the Legislative Council for approval early next year. This system would include a revised Penal Court with a jury system and studentbody Supreme Court which will interpret the constitution and act as an appeals court to review cases which originate in Penal Court.

Inter-Organizational Council showed wisdom in electing officers who have worked with these problems this year, and will probably add much to this year's advancement.

Oveson presented a plan for reorganization of Legislative Council last year to that body, but it was defeated. However, the idea of reorganization was not entirely lost. This year Jack Zenger headed a Legislative Council reorganization committee that picked up some of the ideas, added new ones, and several constitutional amendments which provide for reorganization of Legislative Council are before the studentbody today.

The idea for a cabinet to assist the studentbody president was conceived by Oveson.

Dick Oveson has also held many positions at this university. In addition to being IOC president, he has been columnist and managing editor for the Brigham Young Universe, cabinet member, vice-president of Blue Key service unit, chairman of the 1954-55 student government investigating committee, chief of staff of the AFROTC unit with the rank of cadet colonel, chairman of a traffic committee, and Homecoming committee member for three years.

This man has been a radical. He has constantly sought to reorganize student government organs to make their functions more efficient and democratically inclined, increase studentbody participation in government, and create student awareness of school government.

Every form of government needs a critic to shake up the coals in the furnace of progress. Dick Oveson has done this with varying degrees of success. Other men have tempered his ideas at times with practicality, but this university has profited from those ideas.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"Even though I'm thinking, Professor Snarf, I always look forward to attending your class."

Legislative Leanings

by Dick Oveson

The Inter-Organizational Council elected officers last Monday evening, and picked a crew that should do a fine job with the IOC.

Karl Snow, the new president, chaired the committee which formulated the proposed rushing system and is familiar with the Council and its operation. He is a specialist in rushing, which is what the group needs worse than anything, perhaps.

Steve Barrett, Dick Oveson's new vice president, is well experienced in student government, and the secretary, Robin Bown, served as secretary to the geographical units this past year and has a year of experience on the council.

Speaking of IOC, which is not a new subject in this quite column, we have a few burdens to unload as the year draws to a close.

First, IOC needs an office all to itself—badly. We're not saying this just because the IOC president needs a quiet place to take his girl in the evenings, but with the growing organizational structure on campus and the growing responsibilities of the IOC president he has got to have some place to do his job—if it's done as it should and will be.

Second, it will be a real pity if the rushing procedure proposed by the Council doesn't receive attention before the beginning of next year. Rushing will be under way the second week of fall quarter, and unless the new plan is put into effect the same old problems with the some wild-eyed demands for a "solution to the social unit situation" will be revived.

The administration must decide, of course, whether or not to accept the plan, and there is certainly no group with the interests of the students more at heart than the administration. But we are convinced that the proposed rushing plan is the only feasible answer to an old problem, and that a real injustice will be done if the plan is not tried.

It seems odd to realize that this is the last time we'll have to think of something to put into this blank piece of newspaper. Three years is a long time and represents a lot of words, some, we hope, meaningful, and some certainly not so meaningful. (And a whole lot that didn't mean a darn thing!) Student government is fun—that's the best word that we can think of to describe it. The associations are wonderful—they are the best part. It would be hard to imagine a more eventful or enjoyable three years, and we are grateful to the University in all of its aspects for these years. This sounds like an old grad, but I'm getting a little sentimental.

In any case this is a great school, with a great studentbody. It's been a fine experience, just being a part of it, and we're sure that all of the seniors feel the same way. While everyone is running around making statements about how anxious they are that the quarter end—we venture to predict that next September students will wish fervently to be back for just a little while to see everyone.

Seniors to Hold Annual Trek Saturday

Annual senior trek will be May 23, according to Reed Jenkins, senior class president. Trek is a tour of the campus and sites of university activities, to recall memories, Jenkins said. Trek will begin at 3:30 Saturday afternoon at College Hall, on lower campus. Seniors will view the campus and end at Heritage Hall.

Ideia Bickel, chairman of the trek, said that a potluck supper will be served at Heritage Hall.

She urged seniors to participate in the day's activities. She said seniors should bring their potluck contributions to either Heritage Hall or lower campus Saturday afternoon.

Fern Walton, who is in charge of food arrangements, suggests that girls bring sandwiches, salads, cakes and similar items and the fellows bring potato chips, olives, pickles, crackers and cheese.

Vets Now in School Needn't Bid Again

Veterans who have attended Brigham Young University spring quarter will not be required to apply for GI benefits prior to the day they register for summer or fall quarter. Miss Villa Olson, veteran coordinator, said today.

Miss Olson reminded the veterans that they should sign for their May pay checks before they leave Provo after spring quarter. Forwarding addresses for the checks may be left in her office, 116 Maeser Building.

Veterans attending summer school must give Miss Olson a list of classes on registration day, she said. Veterans are required to carry at least seven hours per term for full-time pay.

OFF WE GO—Bruce Thompson (1) and Bob Oaks congratulate each other in being chosen as members of the first class to attend the newly organized United States Air Force Academy in Colorado. Both are now freshmen at Brigham Young University.

First U.S. Air Academy Class To Include Two From BYU

Two Brigham Young University students have been appointed to the first class to enter the new Air Force Academy, which will be located at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Robert Oaks, Provo, and Bruce Thompson, Evanston, Wyo., were notified this week that they are among the 300 men selected from nominations from every state in the United States.

Oaks is one of two selected from Utah, and Thompson is the only representative from Wyoming. About 40 men took the final tests from Utah and 30 completed from Wyoming, the two said.

Begin at Denver

The men will begin their four-year training program July 11 at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver. The academy is scheduled to move its 126 million dollar campus to Colorado Springs in 1957, according to Oaks and Thompson.

They will be majoring in aeronautical engineering besides spending 430 hours in small-plane flight training. After graduation they are scheduled for 18 months in jet pilot school and a three-year obligation of active Air Force service.

Seven hundred seniors attended last year's breakfast, and Calvert anticipated that as many will be present for this year's feast. The stakehouse will be decorated with fresh flowers.

This End Of The Bench

by Dave Gordon

Thanks Are in Order
Since this is my last column of the 1954-55 year, I would like to thank all those who have given me help and advice during the past year. I especially want to thank all members of the coaching staffs of football, basketball, wrestling, baseball, track, tennis, and golf. The cooperation received from these gentlemen was the only thing that made it possible to give good sports coverage.

This weekend finds the Cougar cinder squad traveling to Salt Lake City for the Conference Track meet. The Cats are favored to win but strong competition is expected from New Mexico, winner of the Eastern Division.

I predict a Cougar victory in this affair.
Congrats to the Bodeo Clubbers
A fine job was done by the Bodeo Club in putting on their week of events. The club took third place and Dick Smith won the All-Around Cowboy award. This is the second time this year that he has won this award at a rodeo.

In this column I would like to name three outstanding players in the three major sports of football, basketball and baseball, for this year.

In football I have chosen center Phil Kochevar for his fine all-around play.

In basketball I picked Terry Tebbis; after all he did make Little All-American, and second team All-American.

In baseball Phil Oyster is my choice; after moving from third to left he played outstanding ball and was one of the team's leading hitters.

Editor's Note
Saturday will ring down the curtain on the 1955 BYU local sports front, when the Skyline Conference track and field meet will be held in Salt Lake City, beginning at 1 p.m.

INTRAMURAL BRIEFS

With four events to go, the Hawaiian Club has taken a commanding lead in the race for the intramural supremacy trophy at Brigham Young University.

The intramural program at BYU, according to Bill Hafen, program director, will wind up one of the most successful years in its history next week with the completion of the softball, horse-shoe, tennis, and track competition.

At the present time, Mr. Hafen said, the Hawaiian Club is out front by nearly 100 points. Two other clubs, the Physical Education Majors and the Vikings, are threatening, however.

Mr. Hafen reported this year's activities have involved some 2,532 college participants. Success is attributed to impetus supplied by the administration and the great desire to participate on the part of students.

The Supremacy Trophy will be awarded the club scoring the greatest number of points during the course of the school year. Small trophies will be awarded the club winners of four major sports, while medals will be given to individual winners.

The standings with four events to go are as follows: Hawaiian Club 573, PEM Club 461, Vikings 412, Tau Sigma 373, Val Hymic 314, Brigadier 371, Brickers 227, Wyoming Club 219, Isabells 208, and Sevier Club 101.

The annual Women's Intramural swimming meet was conducted Saturday at the Park-Ro-Shie pool in Springville.

Teams that accumulated the greatest number of points in placing in swimming and diving events were as follows:

First place—Independents, who are comprised of Frances Hayrup, Arlene Peterson, and Margene Finlinson.

Second place—Tukalon school unit.

Two-Way Tie

A two way tie for first place existed among the individuals scoring the highest number of points, who were Barbara Covey, Tukalon; and Verma Brimhall, Nautillus.

An independent trio of girls were victorious in the medley relay with Nellissa Crowley, Paula Jones, and Verma Brimhall contributing to the winning combination.

Record Production Set by BYU Cow in Herd Milk Test

"Craig Mont Fiebo Femco," Brigham Young University dairy cow, has produced 23,445 pounds of milk and 838 pounds of butterfat during a 365-day lactation period starting at eight years and three months of age.

If "Femco" were to produce at this rate consistently, during her lifetime she would produce enough milk to supply a family three quarts daily for 109 years, according to Grant Richards, animal husbandry department associate professor.

Word has been received from the Holstein-Friesian Association of America that "Femco's" record is higher than any previously established by cows milked twice daily on herd improvement tests, Richards said.

Another cow in the BYU herd, "Mona," was recently classified "excellent," the highest classification given by the Holstein Association, Richards said.

Three Banyan Staffers Win Awards In Production of 1955 Yearbook

Three Banyan staff members were given "outstanding creative accomplishment" awards for their work this year, it was announced today by Lynn Staheli, Banyan editor. Three more staffers were named for their "efficiency, conscientious effort, and ability" in producing the recently distributed yearbook.

Orval Skousen, Mesa, Ariz., was cited for "outstanding achievement" in the field of photography. Dean Jesse, Provo, was named by Staheli for "excellence in layout and illustration," and Yvonne Anderson, Richfield, was awarded the proficiency award, which is an efficiency and service award, Staheli said.

Skousen and Jesse were general editors and Miss Anderson was co-index editor for the book.
